

24th November 2010

New space for small businesses

In keeping with the principle of nurturing fresh ideas, the latest innovative project by The Oxford Science Park has been to create new workspace for small companies called the 'Hub'.

The 'Hub' is a suite of small (1-2 person), furnished offices available on a daily / weekly / or monthly basis. Space in the 'Hub' includes telephone, wireless internet and reception facilities along with 24hr on-site security and access to many other amenities on the Park.

Shannon Blaszkowski manager of the Magdalen Innovation Centre, where the Hub is located commented:

"The 'Hub' is proving very popular. It provides a cost effective alternative for business people who have been working from home but now need a more permanent location. Here they can base their company and present a professional reflection of their business to potential customers and associates. We have also had interest from established companies including satellite operations of larger companies."

This latest scheme offers the chance for small operations to benefit from the Park's shared communal facilities and green environment. In addition, having other similar companies around to promote the exchange of ideas and business experience, should encourage their progress and growth."

For further information about the 'Hub' see www.oxfordsp.com/hub.

ENDS

The 'Hub' based in the Magdalen Centre on The Oxford Science Park.